

Yellow Mountain East Ridge -- shooting cracks, whoomphing

Date

Wed, 01/13/2021 - 08:00

Activity

Skiing

Upside-down snowpack, with a ~1ft strong layer on top of a few inches of weak snow. Significant shooting cracks and whoomphing in areas with deep snow. There was comparatively little snow in the trees -- not enough to cause avalanche concerns. We stayed off high-angle slopes, because of the clear signs of avalanche danger, and the very warm temps.
