

These thin wind slabs released from the ridge top naturally. They ran far because they were likely capping a weak layer of near-surface facets that were resting on a firm bed surface. Photo: GNFAC

Advisory Region
Lionhead Range

Forecast link: GNFAC Avalanche Forecast for Wed Mar 4, 2015
Lionhead Range, 2015-03-03